MILK CASE TO COME TO TRIAL MAY 10TH; JURY MAY BE DRAWN

Attorneys Fail to Reach an Agreement—John L. Fisher Files Answer for Kee and Chappel Dairy Company

Efforts of the attorneys to reach an agreement in the case of A. M. Hull and Frank H. Maxwell, milk producers of Beloit, against the Kee and Chappel Dairy company, of Chicago, have been of no avail and the trial has been set for May 10th in the municipal court by Judge Maxwell. Attorney John L. Fisher, of Beloit, who is representing the milk producers, filed an answer to the complaint of the milk producers this morning in the municipal court.

It is a possibility that a jury will be drawn to try the case as the result will be of vital interest to the parties concerned. If the producers win their suit, they will be able to close the factory if they are forced to pay the farmers the higher price.

In answer to the complaint Attorney Fisher claims that the price of $3.10 for milk delivered in March is not reasonable on the grounds that the company's farmers should share them. To prove his contention he for the producers, figures giving the loss sustained at the local factory at $12,000.00. The plaintiffs contend that the price of milk was made without a conference with the producers and therefore it is not fair and just. The plaintiffs claim that the loss sustained at the local factory at $12,000.00 is not fair and just. NEW UNIFORMS FOR LOCAL STATE GUARD HAVE BEEN SHIPPED

Are Expected to Arrive This Afternoon—Members Are Urged to Get Them This Evening For Parade Tomorrow Afternoon

The commanding officer of the Sixteenth Separate company, Wisconsin State Guard, has received the new uniforms from the quartermaster or the state troops at Camp Douglas showing that the new uniforms for the men had been shipped. They are expected to arrive in Janesville some time this afternoon and, if they do, they will be given out to the members of the company this evening, at their turn out to take part in the parade tomorrow afternoon. The new uniforms will also meet at the armory at four o'clock to take part in the demonstration.

Very favorable records are being made by the members of the State Guard in the target work being done at the armory. During the past week over half of the company have been successful in hitting the target without having taken their turn out. The commanding officer to have as many men in uniform as possible and for this reason the men are asked to get their uniforms this evening if they arrive. The men are ordered to report at the armory at four o'clock tomorrow afternoon to take part in the parade. The members of the two high school cadet companies will also meet at the armory at four o'clock to take part in the demonstration.

Graders are taking an interest in stock cattle. Many sections are full of unmarketable corn that can be utilized for beef making and the prospect of a high market for recently fattened steers warrants an investment of $90 to $100 per head in stockers. Feeders cannot expect present profit margins of $27.50 per cwt, but figure on effecting salvage of trashy corn and getting money out of their grass.

Breeding ewes in demand. Orders for breeding ewes are accumulating on commission houses specializing in Michigan, Ohio, Kentucky and Indiana are in the market and will take every head the west can furnish. British horse inspectors who went to London recently for orders when the military buying campaign was suspended are returning to Montreal and will be distributed among the primary markets of the United States. The government is making a resumption of inspections on May 27.

Cattle slump continues. With only 15,000 cattle here and a mere handful elsewhere, the market continues to slump. Killers needed every hoof available, but it was merely a matter of prices having worked too high. Declines, compared with the high spot Tuesday, were 25¢ for stockers and butchers' cattle, and both on steers and butchers' cattle. Bulls buyers asserted that they had been under the necessity of taking off 75¢.

Even top cattle suffered, $17.25 for 1730 taking over the market this season. The $16.50 of grades of cattle were hit hard and middle classes of butchers' cattle looked 90¢ to 75¢ lower.

Buyers conceded 40¢ to 50¢ declines on the bulk.

There were only 32,000 cattle at all western markets, the local run this week being out 47,000, against 54,000 last week.

Choice to prime steers $16.90 to $17.30. Good to choice steers $15.50 to $16.90. Fair to medium steers $13.75 to $15.50. Light killing steers $11.00 to $12.00. Common light steers $9.50 to $11.00. Choice cows and heifers $10.50 to $15.00. Medium cows and heifers $8.25 to $10.25. Canners and cutters $8.25 to $13.50. Bulls $8.00 to $13.00. Stockers and feeders $8.00 to $13.00.

Hogs Not Welcome. Thirty-two thousand hogs did not get a cordial reception, all there was in the west. The limit was $17.55, and little sold above $17.40. A bear drive resulted in a low spot in the middle of the session, when many good light hogs sold 25¢ to 30¢ lower at $17.20 to $17.40. Rough stuff was a drug, but there

You Can't Rub It Away; Rheumatism is in the Blood

Liniments Will Never Cure.

If you are afflicted with Rheumatism, why waste time with liniments, lotions and other local applications that never did cure Rheumatism, and never will?

Do not try to rub the pain away, for you will never succeed. Try the sensible plan of finding the cause of the pain, and go after that. Remove the cause, and there can be no pain. You will never be rid of Rheumatism until you cleanse your blood of the germs that cause the disease. S. S. S. has never had an equal as a blood purifier and scores of sufferers say that it has cleansed their blood of Rheumatism, and removed all traces of the disease from their system.

Get a bottle of S. S. S. at your drug store, and get on the right treatment today. If you want special medical advice, you can obtain it free by addressing Medical Director, 23 Swift Laboratory, Atlanta, Ga.

Values of light stuff were subjected to severe pruning yesterday, the spread being between the 150¢ and 160¢ grades and fat backs being mostly over 10¢. Lack of shipping demand hurt light hog trade.

Cattle scarcity looms up. Chicago had more beef than all the other western markets combined yesterday. Kansas City reporting only 3,000. The real gap in supply is expected to develop during June and July. After the turn of the half year the western beef round-up will furnish relief.

JANESVILLE SOLDIER WRITES FROM FRANCE

Private Phil Korbin, a member of the 44th Truck Co., E. M. T. S., has written a letter to a friend in this city telling of what is going on over there at the present time. Mr. Korbin left this city last September for Camp Grant, but due to his mechanical knowledge he was transferred to Fort Myer, Va., from which place he left for overseas about two months ago. His letter follows:

March 30, '18.

Will write you a few lines to let you know that I am well and in the best of health. This is a wonderful country over here and I like it real well, although it is several times behind the United States. The weather over here is just what we need at the present time. We can go around all day without our coats.

We have excellent food and a dandy place to sleep, but it is quite hard to purchase tobacco and cigarettes in the country. There are several fellows from Janesville in this vicinity, but I have not as yet met any of them. The natives are quite old-fashioned over here in regard to living and most of them wear wooden shoes and the latest fashions are all two wheeled. We will have our "Y" over here and they are a great thing for the soldiers. We can buy a few articles but no ice cream like we could while we were in the United States. We have had an awful time getting acquainted with the French money, but undoubtedly will learn it thoroughly after we have been held up for prices a few times. Will write again soon.

Two Rivers, May 3.—This city is one of the few in the state and probably the entire country which has invested municipal funds in Liberty bonds. The city council at a meeting this week decided to subscribe $3,000 to the Liberty loan and in addition every alderman has brought bonds personally.

CASPER SHERMAN

Casper Sherman was born on the Atlantic ocean, Sept. 10, 1839, and died in Newville, April 15, 1918, at 10:50 P. M. His parents, Bernhard and Marie (Garlock) Sherman, came from the province of Wurtemberg, Germany and settled in Alleghany Co., N. Y., where they lived for fourteen years.

Coming to Wisconsin in 1857 they settled on what is now the Geo. Westendorp farm in the town of Albion, with the exception of one year in Mississippi, he has lived the past sixty-five years in this vicinity. In August, 1888 he was united in marriage to Amanda M. Richardson of Janesville, Wis., to this union nine children were born, six of whom are living: Bernice (Mrs. Geo. Richardson), Fred, Hattie (Mrs. John Goldthorp), Ella (Mrs. Alfred Wilman), Frank and George. Louise died in Beloit, Jan. 1st, 1905 at the age of twenty-four, Mary and Edith died in infancy.

Mrs. Sherman preceded her husband to the great beyond March 14, 1884, leaving him with a family of small children for whom he assumed the responsibility of both father and mother. Besides his sorrowing family there are left to mourn his loss one brother, John Sherman, eighth grade teacher, and one great grandchild. Though of a quiet and retiring nature he was always anxious to assist in any move that was for the betterment of the community in which he lived; he was a man of strong convictions and noted for his integrity and honesty in all his dealings with his fellow men.

The funeral was held from his late home in Newville, April 13, 1918 at two o'clock P. M. The services were conducted by Rev. L. L. Thayer of Birchwood, Wis., an intimate friend of the deceased. The song service was rendered by Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Clark and Mrs. M. Schmidt of Edgerton and interment was in Fasset cemetery. The pall bearers were John Philip, Edward and Lawrence Sherman, Fay Richardson and Leo Alder.

The chairman of the Afton auxiliary was in Beloit on Saturday and turned over to the Beloit chapter twenty-five dollars to help in furnishing the comfort bags. He also procured some of them to give to the boys going from our own vicinity, the first one going to James Seales. The Afton auxiliary also has the honor of paying for the cards placed in each comfort bag, being designed by the chairman of supplies, Mrs. Crist. It is a neat white card, two by four inches in size, with a small Red Cross and the words, "From the Beloit chapter of the American Red Cross as a token of appreciation to the boys in the United States service."

You remember in the last story I left off just as Billy Bunny got out of the train at Lettuceville, where there was a big family of rabbits who raised lettuce leaves for all the bunnies in the big U. S. A. And the first person he saw was an old gray-haired rabbit, who said: "Glad to see you, Mr. William Bunny. Do you want to buy a carload of lettuce leaves?"

"How much?" asked the little rabbit. "Five million carrot cents," replied the old gentleman bunny, "and that's very cheap, for the leaves are big and juicy and will keep all winter if you put them in the ice house."

"Well, sir, this was a very cheap price, don't you think so?" And Billy Bunny thought so, too, for he opened his knapsack and took out five million carrot cents and gave them to the old gray-haired bunny, and after that all the farmer bunnies loaded a big freight car just full of lettuce leaves and marked on the outside in chalk:

"MR. WILLIAM BUNNY, Brier Patch, Old Snakes Fence Corner, U. S. A."

"RUSH! Fast Freight!" And then it was time for lunch, so the old rabbit said to his new customer, which was Billy Bunny, of course: "Come with me to my house and we'll have something to eat." And as Billy Bunny had a great big appetite by this time, and I might say right here that rabbits always are hungry, he hopped away with the lettuce rabbit farmer, and by and by they came to a little green house in a raspberry patch with a lovely clover field on one side and a peach orchard on the other.

"Two brought my friend, Billy Bunny, home to lunch," said the old gray-haired bunny to a nice looking lady rabbit whose gray hair was parted in the middle and held down on each side by two red coral combs. "What's Billy Bunny?" she said. "I know his mother and his cousin, Mrs. Cottontail." And she led them into the little green house. After they had eaten all they wanted she made the phonola play this song:

"The clover arch is in full bloom
With juicy red-topped clover.
Across the leafy honey bees
Looks like a golden rove."

And it might have kept on playing some more, only just then who should look into the door but Daddy Fox. As soon as the phonola saw him it stopped right then and there, and the rabbits jumped into the cupboard and closed the door and turned the key on the inside before you could say "Jack Rabbit!"

"Ha! Ha!" laughed Daddy Fox. "I'll stay here till you get so tired of that cupboard prison that you'll come out. And when you do you know what will happen, for I don't like lettuce leaves and I just love rabbits." Wasn't that a dreadful thing to hear? But never mind, I'm not going to let that wicked fox get the best of Billy Bunny and his friends. No, sir. Not if I have to go there myself tomorrow, and scare him away with my gun.

Find Soldier's Body.
Sparta, May 3.—The finding of the decomposed body of a soldier in the LaCrosse river five miles from here by William L. Davis, a fisherman, has given the civil and military authorities a mystery to solve. The man it is believed was probably listed as a deserter from some of the companies that trained on the range near here.

Why the Guarantee Is a Failure

WE Goodyear Service Station Dealers wholly fail to understand why the careful motorist should be taxed for the tire abuses of the reckless driver.

This is precisely the situation which exists under the conditions of the definite mileage guarantee.

The careful motorist, in the price of the tire he buys, pays the cost of the guarantee and derives no benefit from it, since in his usage tires deliver him their specified mileage.

The reckless driver, who by his neglect fails to get such mileage, is recompensed by the guarantee largely at the cost of those motorists who do not profit by it.

It is this inequality, this unfairness, this disregard of the real causes of tire mileage or the lack of it, that is working the sure failure of the definite mileage guarantee.

It is this putting a premium on carelessness and a penalty on the intelligent use of tires, that is strengthening the suspicion long in the minds of thinking motorists.

The knowledge is becoming universal that the definite mileage guarantee, such as it is, absolutely must be paid for.

The bulk of progressive car owners are making it clear that they had rather see its cost be spent in bettering tire quality than in protecting the diminishing class of drivers who least deserve protection.

MILK ESSENTIAL.

Handled by the hoof and mouth disease but a few short years ago, with herds of a mediocre quality, Rock county has risen to one of the big milk and beef cattle producing sections of the state and now is in danger of losing its newly gained laurels in the milk production owing to lack of railway facilities, congested business, failure to secure adequate condensers, and ships to market the product in foreign countries where it is most vitally needed. It is an unfortunate condition, but one which the war brings about, and if the local producers would stop and consider the actual conditions that confront the distributors there might be some middle of the road settlement made. We do not live in those Latin countries where they drive a few cows up to your door yard and milk the poor beasties before your eyes to see you have your just measure, nor do we live in the neighborhood where every second or third family keeps a cow as in years past, and the neighbors all bought of the owner and had great pitchers of rich cream. We do not live in the day and age when a quart of milk to an individual in the family was essential, no, we look for more hygienic methods.

Just consult authorities on milk and you will find that it contains more of the essentials of life than you thought had ever existed. The Chicago Tribune calls attention to the fact that scientists who have studied dietary matters agree that no greater mistake could be made than to permit a general decline in the dairy industry. On the contrary, they are urging that everything possible be done to encourage it. Dr. R. V. McCallum of Johns Hopkins university in particular is seeking to promote more general consumption of dairy products.

The reason for this emphasis lies in the fact that dairy products contain a certain unknown factor sometimes called "vitamines," which are essential to the diet. By experiments with animals Dr. McCallum has proved conclusively that growth cannot be sustained without them. Butter fat is not the only substance in which they are found, but it is the most palatable and satisfactory of these substances. The generally inferior character of the races which do not use dairy products, but subsist chiefly on cereals, tends to bear out the contention of the scientists.

Now we do not want to commit the folly of undermining our national strength by discouraging the dairy business. If we have to spend a little more for milk and butter we can well afford to save it somewhere else; the one thing we cannot afford to do is to destroy the market for these necessities. Mr. McCollum was asked how much milk a school boy ought to have every day. "My answer is this," he replied: "That I have four children, and I give them a quart of milk apiece every day." This ought to be good advice for Chicago in the present crisis.

This is good judgment, but let's go a step further and see if we can't get in touch with the local milk depots and perhaps go fifty-fifty on the profit and loss question. It is only temporary, the loss of actual value on milk, so do not break up the herds that have been built up, but look at the matter coolly and calmly and think of it as a war measure and let producers and distributors do their share of the loss or take their share of the profit if there is any.

This is the loyal way to look at it, for a good milk cow sold for beef can not be replaced for some years, and now with spring pictures coming on the cost of feed will be less and certainly it is worth the experiment. If there is no middle of the road track for the distributor he is going out of business and the producer will sell his herd and this will be an end to our boasted "million dollar center of milk cows." Rock county can not afford to do this. Think it over and see if some compromise is not possible before you break up your herds and sell the cows for beef.

AN INJURED MAN'S FUTURE.

Our country is already full of men who are suffering from disabilities due to industrial accidents. The type of man that peddles lead pencils or notions is familiar. He shows you his lack of an arm or leg, and appeals to you on the basis of sympathy to buy his wares, which frequently you don't want. Practically it is begging for money. These people do not contribute any service. The little trifles they offer are always for sale in the stores.

We are now to have a new problem of this kind, in the great number of injured soldiers to come back and let us say on the basis of sympathy to buy his wares, which frequently you don't want. Practically it is begging for money. These people do not contribute any service. The little trifles they offer are always for sale in the stores.

The former employers of injured soldiers should go the limit to take them back. They can be more useful there than anywhere else. Even though they may have lost an arm or leg, there will be some things they can do in almost any factory. Their soldier experience will give them determination to overcome difficulties, and they may yet be profitable workers.

A government report on the condition of these men emphasizes the idea that every man who loses a leg should have an artificial limb and that his economic value is greatly increased if he practices getting about on it as much as he can. Most industries can find use for such men if they can move somewhat on their legs. They often become exceedingly skillful with their hands.

THE PLAYGROUND MOVEMENT.

Only a few years ago it was not considered necessary to find any public place for children to play. They could have their games in the street or find some back lot. When they did start a game on any private land, the owner would usually want them off because they might do a few cents' worth of damage. Or the neighbors were inexpressibly shocked because the utterly depraved youngsters would persist in hollering.

If they started to play in the street drivers and motorists found fault. A wide open playground means off more juvenile law breaking than a playground of police. The bad boy is commonly the boy that can't do anything to do. Divert his boundless energy in outdoor sports and it is as harmless as steam in the open air. Confine it, and you create an explosion.

With pleasure automobile production cut down 75 per cent. some of our speedsters will have to get along with an ancient piece of junk made last year.

It is denied that the hoarders who hold in six or eight barrels of flour are going to lose it all, as everyone will favor letting them keep what is moldering.

Now why not eat two potatoes for dinner today and save a slice of bread for some soldier out there in No Man's land who does hanker for a little home food?

This stripping German spies and painting them green is all wrong, as it is a needless affront to our Irish citizens.

The motorists who complain most bitterly about bad roads, are usually the same ones who tear out the surface by their reckless scorching.

ON THE SPUR of the MOMENT

ROY K. MOULTON

A LITTLE SLICE OF LIFE.

Next door to us lives a beautiful young maid whose father has been killed in the war. She has been very nervous. Like all the rest of us, concerning the great German drive in France, the situation has been painful. But, in spite of her nervousness, the young lady has been hopeful. She has kept saying to us: "Never mind, the tide will turn soon. We'll teach those roughnecks a lesson that they will not soon forget." Today she burst in upon us, radiant. She almost screamed: "It's all right. We are safe at last. The Germans will advance no further. Look!" She showed us a cablegram which said: "Arrived safe. Jack."

So it's all over now and we are saved. Gosh! It must be fine to feel. The way that girl feels about Jack.

A prominent manufacturer of men's clothing says suits will cost $75 each next year.

But the young man can always get a fine suit for nothing by joining the army.

Personally, being too fat to fight, we feel that going about wrapped in a horse blanket will be a pleasant thing it will help drive back the enemy.

It was the last car for the suburbs that night. Suddenly there came the tinkle of a coin dropped on the floor of the car, and the benevolent old gentleman who was sitting in the corner seat leaned over and picked up something.

"Any one lost a $5 gold piece?" he asked.

Nine passengers searched through their pockets and announced that they had dated 1918," said the under.

"The marks of the losers were thinning. Four averred that their lost coin bore that date.

"It was worn on one side," said the old man.

"Yes," giggled one passenger. "Then here you are, beamed the old man. 'Here's a nickel toward it.'

A poet tried to join the marine corps, so the story goes. He entered the recruiting office and said:

"My country calls me to fight. Tell me, kind sir, am I in right? I want to fight and clear the sea, and make it safe for democracy."

He went through the physical test room and when he came out they handed him a slip:

If you would fight, there's one solution. Please go and get a constitution."

Poeting is such a sedentary life.

Just Folks

By Edgar A. Guest.

NO TIME FOR SELFISHNESS. There'll be time enough for money when the boys come home from sea.

We can dine again on honey when the flag's from danger free: There'll be time enough for pleasure when the victory is won, Time enough to gather treasure when our heavy task is done. But right now we must be living with a single aim in view. All we have we must be giving to the work we have to do.

There'll be time for selfish labor in the glad and glorious years When we've sheathed once more the saber and we've dried all our brothers' tears. There'll be time for selfish saving when these days of strife are past And the old flag's proudly waving o'er a peace that's made to last. But today our boys are dying for a cause we know is true, Now's the time for self-denying, we must all be soldiers, too.

There'll be time enough for laughter when the boys are home again, We can reach the goal we're after when the tides cease to ebb. We can seek our selfish pleasure, we can tread our selfish ways And can fill with gold our measure in the future's happy days. We can treat our money as a clay under peaceful skies of blue. But until the war is over we've a single task to do.

PRELIMINARY STEPS ARE BEING TAKEN TO FORM COMMERCE BODY

Members of the American City Bureau Make Survey of Possibilities for Development in This City.

As part of the preliminary work necessary to the building of a strong Chamber of Commerce for Janesville, Col. C. A. Simmons and Mr. C. W. Otto of the American City Bureau are engaged in making a survey of the city, with especial reference to the possibilities for development in both civic and industrial lines.

As a result of the survey to date Col. Simmons expressed himself today as being very much impressed with the latent possibilities of the city. To a Gazette man he said: "We are much impressed with the natural beauty of Janesville and also with its industrial possibilities. You have transportation facilities and factory sites that might be the envy of many a larger city and residential districts of which you may well be proud. The spirit of your citizens is another thing upon which you should be congratulated."

"One does not often find a city of this size that can handle so quickly and so well a task like the raising of a million dollars, as I understand it," said Col. Simmons, and his colleagues on the Liberty Loan Committee have done. Today we called upon Treasurer Wisner of the War Chest Committee and I was tremendously impressed with the completeness with which this Committee has done such a vast amount of work as is reflected by the records kept by Mr. Wisner.

"A city which can pull together on patriotic projects in this way should most certainly apply the same amount of co-operation to the solving of its own civic and industrial problems. Since it is only through co-operation that any city can make its greatest progress. We believe that a strong Chamber of Commerce, organized along the most modern lines, will supply the medium through which Janesville can begin to realize on her possibilities."

In connection with the plans for a strong Chamber of Commerce, a meeting of the Committee on Speak-

CHARLES M. SCHWAB.

"I'm an outside, not a desk man." Do we need to tell any alive American that these words are the words of the most notable "dollar a year" man recently drafted from the world of big business to the work of Uncle Sam—Charles M. Schwab?

This "outside" man who is in supreme sway over the ship-building program of the United States was sweeping snow from the streets of Williamsburg, Pa., just forty-five years ago—an "outside man's" job if there ever was one.

Like the flicker-flicker of the old-time movie we see Schwab, looking back over his career, grocery clerk, time-keeper in a steel plant, in Europe learning what America could not teach him of the steel industry, back in charge of the Edgar Thompson steel plant at twenty-seven, in full charge of the Homestead works in a few years, and then president of the United States Steel Corporation at the insistence of Andrew Carnegie who made Schwab's presidency a condition of the sale of the stock when J. P. Morgan formed the corporation.

"Smiling Charlie" retired after a short spell of drawing a million a year salary. He went to Europe to play. Soon he was back, plunging into business again. He couldn't keep out.

The Bethlehem Steel Corporation grew under his masterful operation from a run-down plant to the most perfect steel-producing organization in the world. His fortune is a year's salary of a hundred million. He boasts of having paid men $1,000,000 a year salaries because they could earn it. His New York home on Riverside drive cost $5,000,000. His Bethlehem summer home is a palace.

J. M. THAYER PASSED AWAY THURSDAY NOON

Was An Old Resident of Janesville and a Former Member of the City Board of Education. Yesterday noon, James M. Thayer, a venerable and respected resident of Janesville, passed into the world beyond after a short illness due to old age. Mr. Thayer was born in New York state July 11, 1840, and came to Rock county in 1873, settling in Johnston, and thirteen years later he moved with his family to Janesville. He was united in marriage in 1864 to Charlotte Pralick, who died in 1913, and to this union was born one son, Milo M. Thayer, who passed away several years ago. His only surviving relatives are Mrs. Miriam A. Thayer, widow of the late Milo M. and one grandson, J. Norris Thayer. Mr. Thayer was well known in this city and other tobacco centers, having been engaged in the business for many years. During his well spent career he also served the city in a civic way, having been a member of the board of education from the first ward for 12 years, one term of which he was president. He was also Grand Master of the A. O. U. W. in the state of Wisconsin for two years. Funeral services will be held from his late residence, 112 Linn street, Saturday afternoon at four thirty, Rev. Henry Willmann officiating. Interment will be made in the Oak Hill cemetery.

U. S. SILK EMBARGO TO HAVE SERIOUS EFFECT

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

Nottingham, England, May 3.—The United States proposal to put an embargo on the export of lace has caused consternation in the lace trade. If the embargo is put into effect, it would mean the loss of a serious effect on the Nottingham lace trade as one-third of the entire output is usually exported to the United States. Nottingham exports about $3,500,000 worth in lace annually and although there was a marked falling off last year the figure was $4,500,000.

A leading manufacturer said the effect of the prohibition will be tremendous. He was inclined to think the American government regarded lace as a luxury and intended to stop its export during the war. The secretary of the Federation of Lace and Embroidery Employers said the output was enormous and an embargo would mean the loss of a serious effect on the Nottingham lace trade as one-third of the entire output is usually exported to the United States. Nottingham exports about $3,500,000 worth in lace annually and although there was a marked falling off last year the figure was $4,500,000.

BY DAISY DEAN

"If the government wants me for a propaganda picture, I'll play a maid who has but two scenes, while somebody else does the 'big part'."

Thus speaks this pretty actress who has played in more real "thrillers" than any other actress on the screen. She claims to be an American patriot from the very core, despite the fact that her father was an Irishman born in America and her mother a Corsican from the land of Napoleon.

Her father, Pearl White, whose harrowing experiences in "The House of Hate" are being followed by serials runs throughout the country. Miss White has been doing her bit to help Uncle Sam in just such a way as one would expect from such a daring actress.

To help navy officers recruit she rode a beam from the pavement to the twenty-second story of a building which was still in construction. When a large enough crowd gathered she delivered a speech and distributed pamphlets encouraging enlistment.

In the present Liberty Loan Miss White acted as a "Four-Minute" man and in one night made a circuit of twenty-one theaters.

When asked by government authorities to pose for a war poster by Howard Chandler Christy she agreed without a moment's hesitation.

When her chauffeur wanted to enlist she did all in her power to help him get into aviation and he is now "somewhere in France" with a commission.

Thus has Miss White done everything in her power to carry on what she considers her part in this war.

OTHER SCREEN PATRIOTS

Among those actors who save their time to aiding the third Liberty loan are several of the most famous stars of the world. Besides Douglas Fairbanks, Charlie Chaplin and Mary Pickford, all of whom toured the larger cities making appeals, William S. Hart, Wallace Reid, Clara Kimball Young, Madge Kennedy and Emmy Wehlen were just as active workers.

Perhaps one of the most unique and daring bits of citizenship was played by Mabel Normand, who offered to

LOGICAL TALK GIVEN BY NOTED SPEAKER

Address on Prohibition at Presbyterian Church by Famous California Orator.

A clear and logical presentation of facts was given by J. H. Woertendyke of California concerning the possibilities of securing prohibition in this state, at a meeting held last evening at the Presbyterian church. According to the views of Mr. Woertendyke, Wisconsin was considered the most hopeless of the states of the union in regard to the liquor question and for that reason the dry forces were using special efforts along that line in the state. In discussing various plans looking toward national prohibition the speaker said there were several possibilities to be considered. One of these which might cause the law making process might pass the law making the manufacture of liquor illegal; that the president might proclaim a war time prohibition; and the third way was by securing the ratification of the states to the present prohibition law.

Although many would like to see the president announce war time prohibition at once, yet the opportunity was given, said the speaker, to secure results by the ratification of the prohibition amendment now passed by congress. Eleven states have already ratified the law, leaving twenty-five yet to go. And of these Wisconsin has the reputation of being the most hopelessly wet.

In a discussion of the use of grain in making liquors the speaker pointed out the fact that its use had been saved by the prohibition of the making of distilled liquors. That during the five month period of saving between the time the law was passed and until the time it was enforced a very much larger quantity than usual of liquor was made and is now held in bond. In this way the saving of grain was annulled and the purpose of the law evaded. The statement has been repeatedly made by the brewery interests that barley is of no use as food. This, by repeated experiments at the present time has been found to be false. Barley has always been used for the making of bread, and at the present time is the best substitute for wheat which can be found, it was affirmed.

Mr. Woertendyke commended the work being done in this state by the defense league in the little state of Wisconsin, and said that they were taking the broad minded view of the situation, both in the state and nation.

The meeting last evening was under the auspices of the national prohibition movement and was held as a union meeting of the different churches of the city. A large audience gathered and Mr. Woertendyke and a good audience was in attendance at the meeting.

FAVORS TEACHING OF SPANISH IN THE U. S.

(BY INTERNATIONAL NEWS.)

New York, May 3.—Mayor Hylan today joined with President Menocal of Cuba in promotion of an international educational alliance for the purpose of binding the United States and Latin-America closer together. Hylan issued an endorsement of suggestion by the Cuban president that the first step toward a closer relationship should be the teaching of Spanish in the public schools.

President Menocal has proposed the following features as means of establishing unity of the Americas:

1. A Pan American educational convention to be held in Havana next fall. To this meeting President Menocal has invited the heads of the great universities of North, Central and South America.

2. The establishment of an interchange of students between the universities of the United States and Latin-America. In this way American young men may take post graduate courses in countries where Spanish is spoken and thus learn the Spanish language and Spanish-American institutions, as is impossible to do today.

3. The preparation of young men in the United States for diplomatic and consular service in Latin-American countries. The courses of study to be followed by American students at Latin American universities will be chosen with their advice and cooperation of the state department.

4. The teaching of Spanish as a prescribed study in the public schools of the United States. Mayor Hylan has already begun an investigation to determine how this can best be done in the schools of New York City.

The plan originated with Severance Johnson, a New York newspaper editor, who went to Cuba last winter to study the educational system of the island republic. He took with him a letter of introduction to President Menocal from Mayor Hylan.

CALL WILL BE ISSUED TO GAIN MEN FOR NAVY

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

Great Lakes, May 3.—All men who entered the navy training school here last winter have been called to active duty by May 1. During December and up until January 15 thousands of apprentice seamen reported at the station. Unusual calls from the fleet have taken every one of these men as fast as they completed their three months' course of training.

Since April 15, the date they finished their training period, these men have been leaving the station in large quantities. A majority were assigned to eastern receiving ships.

Apprentice seamen were not received at the station between January 15 and March 15. On March 15 they again started coming until now there are nearly 3,000 apprentice seamen on the station, most of whom are going through their detention period, and will not be ready for transfer as trained men until June 15.

Notwithstanding the fact that the supply of trained men has been depleted, the fleet still is demanding Great Lakes blue jackets. There for these calls is a request for 500 men immediately.

In order to comply with this request it will be necessary to fill the quota of men who have just completed their detention period, a fact which is regretted very much by the station as the men sent cannot be expected to measure up to the standard of Great Lakes bluejackets.

From June 15 on the station will be able to supply the same qualifications as those who have made the station known everywhere for its efficiency in training men. Until then no thoroughly trained seamen will be available.

RAINBOW'S END

A NOVEL

"Come here," commanded the American. Jacket shook his head. He made a painful attempt to swallow, and when his utterance became more distinct he consigned his idol to a warmer place than Cuba.

"I'm a tough kid," he declared. "Don't get me on me."

The two parleyed briefly; then, when satisfied that no violence was intended him, the boy sat down to listen. But, as before, neither argument nor appeal had the slightest effect upon him. He denied that he had followed his benefactor; he declared that he was a free agent and at liberty to go where he wished. If it so chanced that his fancy took him to the city of Matanzas at the same time O'Reilly happened to be traveling thither, the circumstance might be put down to the long arm of coincidence. If his company were distasteful to the older man, O'Reilly was free to wait and follow later; it was a matter of complete indifference to Jacket. He had business in Matanzas and he proposed to attend to it. The boy lied gravely, unblushingly. Nevertheless, he kept a watchful eye upon his hearer.

"Very well," O'Reilly told him finally. "I give in."

Jacket's face instantly lit up. He radiated good humor; he hitched his body closer.

"By—! I get my own way, don't I?" he laughed.

"Indeed you do," O'Reilly laid a hand fondly upon his loyal follower. "And I don't mind telling you that I'm more than half glad of it. I—I was getting lonesome. I didn't know how much I could miss you. But now we must make some plans, we must have an understanding and decide who we are. Let me see—your real name is Narciso?"

"Narciso Villar,"

"Well, then, I shall be Juan Villar, your brother. Henceforth we shall speak nothing but Spanish. Tell me now, what was our father's name, where was our home, and what are we doing together?"

During the breathless interval before the shower the two sat with their heads together, talking earnestly. As the wind came and the cooling rain began to rattle on the leaves overhead they took up their bundles and set out. The big drops dripped from their bodies; their thin garments clung to them and water streamed down their bodies; overhead the sky was black and rent by vivid streaks of fire, but they plodded onward cheerfully.

Jacket was himself again; he bent his weight against the tempest and lengthened his short strides to O'Reilly's. He tried to whistle, but his teeth chattered and the wind interfered, so he hummed a song, to drive the chill out of his bones and to hearten his benefactor. Now that he was at last accepted as a full partner in this enterprise, it became his duty not only to share its perils, but to lessen its hardships and to yield diversion.

The rain was cold, the briars beside the overgrown path were sharp, and they scratched the boy's bare legs cruelly; his stomach clamored for a companion to that solitary sweet potato, but, in his breast glowed ardor and pride. Jacket considered himself a fortunate person—a very fortunate person. Indeed, had he not found a brother, and did not that brother love him? There was no doubt about the latter, for O'Reilly's eyes, when he looked down, were friendly and intimate. Here was a man to die for.

The downpour lasted but a short time, when the sun came out and dried the men's clothes; on the whole, it had been refreshing. When evening came the Villar brothers sought refuge in an old sugar mill, or rather in a part of it still standing. They were on the main calzada now, the paved road which links the two main cities of the island, and by the following noon their destination was in sight.

O'Reilly felt a sudden excitement when Matanzas came into view. From this distance the city looked quite as it did when he had left it, except that the blue harbor was almost empty of shipping, while the familiar range of hills that hid the Yumuri—that valley of delight so closely linked in his thoughts with Rosa Varona—seemed to smile at him like an old friend. For the thousandth time he asked himself if he had come in time to find her, or if fate's maddening delays had proved his own and the girl's undoing.

O'Reilly knew that although Matanzas was a prison and a periscope, a girl like Rosa would suffer in peril infinitely worse than imprisonment or disease. It was a thought he could not bear to dwell upon.

Signs of life began to appear now, the travelers passed small garden patches and occasional cultivated fields; they encountered loaded carts bound into the city, and once they hid themselves while a column of mounted troops went by.

O'Reilly stopped to pass the time of day with a wrinkled cartman whose detected oxen were resting. "Going into the city, are you?" the fellow inquired. "Starved out, I suppose. Well, it's no pleasant to starve in one place as another."

Jacket helped himself to a stalk of cane from the load and began to strip it with his teeth.

"Will the soldiers allow us to enter?"

Johanne inquired.

"Of course. Why not? The old man laughed mirthlessly; then his voice changed. "Go back," he said; "go back and die in the fields. Matanzas stinks of rotting corpses. Go back where the air is clean." He swung his long lash over the oxen, they leaned against the load, and the cart creaked dismally on its way.

It is never difficult to enter a trap, and Matanzas was precisely that. There were soldiers everywhere, but beyond an indifferent challenge at the outer blockhouse, a perfunctory question or two, Narciso and Juan Villar experienced no trouble whatever in passing the lines. Discipline, never strict at best, was extremely lax at the brick fort along the roads, and since these two refugees were too poor to warrant search, they were waved onward by the sentries. They obeyed silently; in aimless bewilderment they shuffled along toward the heart of the city. Almost before they realized it they had run the gauntlet and had joined that army of misery, fifteen thousand strong. The hand of Spain had closed over them.

CHAPTER XVII.

Rosa.

"Look!" Jacket clutched at O'Reilly and pointed a shaking finger. "More beggars! Christ! And those little children!" The boy tried to laugh, but his voice cracked nervously. "Are they children, or ghouls with legs under them?"

O'Reilly looked, then turned his eyes away. He and Jacket had reached the heart of Matanzas and were facing the public square, the Plaza de la Libertad. It was called, Matanzas appeared poor and squalid, depressingly wretched; its streets were foul and the Plaza de la Libertad—grim mockery of a name—was crowded with a throng such as it had never held in O'Reilly's time, a throng of people who were, without exception, gaunt, listless, ragged. There was no afternoon parade of finery, no laughter, no noise; the benches were full, but their occupants were silent, too sick or too weak to move. Nor were there any romping children. There were, to be sure, vast numbers of undersized figures, in the square, but one needed to look twice to realize that they were not pygmies or wizened little old folks. It was not strange that Jacket had compared them to ghouls with legs, for all were naked, and most of them had bodies swollen into the likeness of pots or calabashes. They looked peculiarly grotesque with their spidery legs and thin faces.

O'Reilly passed a damp hand across his eyes. "Just Heaven," he breathed.

Step Lively! Corns Quit With "Gets-It"

The Great Corn-Loosener of the Age. Never Fails. Painless.

Watch my step? What's the use? I go along "right side up" without corns, even with corns, because I use "Gets-It," the painless, off-the-banana-pot corn remover. I tried other ways galore, until I was blue to use "Gets-It."

"Corns Simply Can't Stop Us, We Use 'Gets-It'!"

In the face and feet in the toes. No more for me. "Gets-It" is never fails. Touch any corn or callus with two drops of "Gets-It" and "Gets-It" does the rest. It's a relief to be able to stop cutting corns, making them bleed, wrapping them up like packages and using sticky tape and salves. It removes any corn clear and clean, leaving the toe as smooth as your palm. You can wear those new shoes without pain, dance and be frisky on your feet. It's great to use "Gets-It."

"Gets-It," the guaranteed, money-back corn remover, the only sure way, costs but a little at any drug store. Manufactured by E. Lawrence & Co., Chicago, Ill. Sold in Janeville and recommended as the world's best corn remedy by Smith Drug Co., McCue & Busa.

"She—she's one of these!"

The reconcentrados, overrun Matanzas in an unclean swarm; streets and plazas were congested with them; for no attempt was made to confine them to their quarters. Morning brought them streaming down from the suburban slopes where they lived, evening sent them winding back; their days were spent in an aimless search for food. They snatched at crumbs and combed the gutters for crusts. How they managed to exist, whence came the food that kept life in their miserable bodies, was a mystery, even to the citizens of the city; no organized effort had been made to cure for them and there was insufficient surplus food for half their number. Yet somehow they lived and lingered on.

At the time of O'Reilly's arrival the sight presented by these innocent victims of war was appalling; it roused in him a dull red rage at the power which had wrought this crime and at the men who permitted it to continue. Spain was a Christian nation, he reflected; she had set up more crosses than any other, and yet beneath them she had butchered more people than all the nations of the earth combined. This monstrous, coldly calculating effort to destroy the entire Cuban people seemed to him the blackest infamy of all, and he wondered if it would be allowed to succeed.

Fortunately for the two friends, General Betancourt's generosity served to relieve them from any immediate danger of starvation. After making a few purchases and eating with the utmost

"I Can't Stand That," He Confessed.

Frugality, they began their search. Later they stretched themselves out to sleep on the stones beneath the portals of the railroad station.

They spent a horrid, harrowing night, for now the general distress was brought home to them more poignantly than ever. At dawn they learned that these people were actually dying of neglect. The faint light betrayed the presence of new corpses lying upon the station flagstones. From those still living, groans, sighs, sick mutterings rose until O'Reilly finally dragged his youthful companion out of the place.

"I can't stand that," he confessed. "I can't sleep when people are starving to death alongside of me. This money burns my pocket. I—I—"

Jacket read his purpose and laid a detaining hand upon his arm. "It will save our lives, too," he said simply.

"Boh! We are men. There are women and children yonder."

But Jacket's sensibilities were caloused, it seemed. "Of what use would your few pennies be among so many?" he inquired. "God has willed this, and he knows what he is doing. Besides, your pretty one is probably as hungry as these people. No doubt we shall find that she, too, is starving."

O'Reilly slowly withdrew his hand from his pocket. "Yes! It's Rosa's money. But—come! I can't endure this."

He led the way back to the Plaza de Libertad and there on an iron bench they waited for the full day. They were very tired, but further sleep was impossible, for the death wagons rumbled by on their way to collect the bodies of those who had died during the night.

Pleasant Fields Of Holy Writ

THE INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON. Mark X. 17-27. May 5, 1918.

Golden Text: Seek ye first his kingdom and his righteousness and all these things shall be added unto you. Matthew VI. 33.

JESUS SETS UP NEW STANDARDS OF LIVING.

Jesus had just given the disciples one of the most striking object-lessons of their whole training. He had taken the little children in his arms and placed his hands upon them in blessing, affirming, with divine authority, that they and they like them constituted the kingdom of God.

A certain young man, not yet a disciple, may have witnessed the scene and heard the words which defined its meaning, for he came running after Jesus when he left the house in which the children had been presented. He was profoundly impressed by what he had heard and seen. Certain characteristics are evident at a glance. Moral earnestness is shown in the young ruler's indifference to the opinions of the bystanders. He ran, he prostrated himself, he asked his heart-quest.

When he asked the question, "What must I do to inherit the kingdom of God?" he was willing to learn from one who was already under ecclesiastical odium. His warm-heartedness won the Master's love. He was candid and courageous. He was versed in the Law, a rabbinical graduate, possibly, a member of the Sanhedrin itself.

Jesus charges the commonplace salvation which he affirms that the deity is the only being to whom the term "Good" can be applied without qualification; and that his commandments show that relative "goodness" which he wished men to attain. Jesus runs the gamut of the second table of the Decalogue and is patient when the inquirer of hand declares his life-long obedience to the same. The very fact that honestly believing himself to have kept the whole law and yet is not satisfied with his attainments and reaches eagerly to something beyond is evidence of the nobility and genuineness of his quest. One finds oneself hoping the Master will not put the bar so high as to daunt such a soul and thus lose a follower whose abilities, nature and acquired would be of incalculable value in the founding of the church.

But before our very eyes, up goes the bar in the drastic order. "Sell all, give to poor, follow me!"

Jesus does not mean that the candidate for his kingdom shall hang out a red flag from his chateau, hire an auctioneer, ring a bell, put everything up to the forced sale with the cry, "Going, going, gone!" What Jesus intends by these forceful words is to break up the golden setting which holds this jewel so reluctantly. He wants him to come out from the old environment and the dominance of its ideas, customs and principles, into a brand new sphere. In a word he asks him to exchange ownership for stewardship.

The rich ruler, staggered as under a blow, holds his breath upon his heart is evident at a glance. It's his master. He is not master of it. "I looked," says Dante in Divine Comedy, "and beheld the shade of him who through craft and ardor made the great refusal." It is as if Jesus was writing the epitaph of the rich young ruler, whom he loved and coveted for his service, when he said, "How hardly shall they that have riches enter the kingdom of God."

THE TEACHER'S LANTERN.

The young man who came expecting to have something novel and exciting imparted to him by the new rabbi felt a shock of disappointment when he was turned back to something as trite and elemental as the Ten Commandments. Yet that which underlies the two tables of duty toward God and duty toward man is in the ultimate analysis the highest good of life, the very thing for which the young ruler sought. It is love, trust, obedience toward God. That brings everything good in its train.

Vow of Poverty can never be based on this saying of Jesus. Wealth is not intrinsically evil. The moral quality is in the attitude of the soul toward wealth. Some poverty-poor people have their desires so centered on wealth which they do not possess that they are its slaves. On the other hand some millionaires are so detached from their possessions that they do not consider themselves as owning them. Jesus wanted to win the ruler over to this noble attitude and did his best to achieve that result.

The Master just picked up the common exaggerated saying of the time to indicate the impossible when he referred to camel and needle-eye.

The ruler was self-centered. How could he live without his fortune? He could not conceive of himself as shorn of the luxuries of table and toilet. It was nothing to him except in a sentimental way how others fared.

The great possessions of the young man represented the evanescent and short-lived thing. The self-denial of the apostles on the other hand was the permanent and enduring. The ruler's wealth likely fell into the hands of the ruthless invaders but the self-oblivious service of the apostles survives in the civilization now current. "Make sure you haven't lost the things that money won't buy." "The worst thing about money is that it is so often costs so much."

Wealth is not uncommonly a non-conductor of heavenly wisdom. There is stopped by it. There is often a tragedy in being rich. "The peril of wealth can be offset. The salvation is not with men however except 'as they are alongside of God.' There and there only all things are possible. This is the divine teaching of Jesus in this connection."

The single word "Good" is made the touchstone by means of which the pure gold of moral character is discriminated from the alloy of ceremonial goodness. On the lips of the young ruler it was as empty as the salutation "Good morning!" On Jesus' lips it was the condensation of all the virtue, joy, benevolent helpfulness of Christianity, the kingdom of God in the soul of man. To one it was a plane, dull and arid, to the other a Mount Sinai altitude enthroning God himself.

CHRISTIAN DUTY AND PRIVILEGE (5) CONDUCT IN THE HOME AND SCHOOL.

Motto: Conduct comprehends all adjustments of acts to ends. Herbert Spencer.

Success of a factory or store is an important matter. It spells economic prosperity and content. But the success of a home is of transcendent importance. The family is the underpinning of the whole social superstructure. Never was Jesus more "manfully indignant" than when he dealt with the common custom of affirming that one's means were "earned," that is devoted to the church and hence unavailable for the support even of aged and dependent parents. But one must go back of the "toilet nice veneer, deceptive and fragile. Conduct is character in action. Conduct will take care of itself if the heart is right.

Mothers! Don't Give Children Nauseous Medicine for Colds

Local Druggists Are Offering an "Outside" Treatment on 30 Days' Trial.

Children's Stomachs Are Delicate—Easily Upset by Constant Internal Dosing. The Best Way to Prevent Colds is to Allow the Children Regular Outdoor Exercise. Keep Plenty of Fresh Air in the Bedroom at Night, and, at the First Sign of Trouble, Apply the Southern External Vapor Treatment.

Fifteen years ago a North Carolina Druggist discovered a process of combining the old-fashioned remedies, Camphor, Turpentine and Menthol, with certain volatile oils, in salve form, so that when applied over the throat and chest, the body heat would release these ingredients in the form of vapors. These vapors, breathed in all night long, carry the medication with each breath, to the air passages and lungs. In addition, the preparation is absorbed through and stimulates the skin, taking out that tightness and soreness in the chest.

Today this treatment, known as VapoRub, is universally used throughout the south in preference to internal dosing. By arrangement with the manufacturers the local druggists are offering 25c jars on 30 days' trial, the purchase price to be refunded if you are not delighted with the results.

You have to try VapoRub to realize its remarkable effect, not only for deep chest colds, sore throat, bronchitis or incipient pneumonia, but for head colds, asthmatic or catarrhal troubles. Group is usually relieved within fifteen minutes and an application at bedtime prevents a night attack.

VapoRub is particularly recommended to mothers with small children as it is externally applied and can therefore be used freely and often with perfect safety on the smallest member of the family.

BOWLING TOURNEY IS GETTING VERY WARM

Four Teams Will Probably Tie Up for the First Place in the Tourney, According to Dope.

All dope on the outcome of the Church league bowling tourney seems to be completely up in the air, and the paper is according to the dope, there are four or more teams which will have to be rolled after the schedule to decide the winning team as it seems to be a sure thing that three teams will tie up for the first place and for that reason a post-date game will probably be rolled between either the Methodists and the Baptists or the Methodists and the St. Paul's Lutherans.

The Methodists still have nine games to roll to win but every one with weaker teams. Episcopalian, Christian and Presbyterian and it is practically a certainty that they will win all of the games. Should they in any event lose any of these games the whole dope will be all mixed up and will then put another team, the Congregationalists in the running, making four, although the Congregationalists are not by any means out of the running as yet.

The Baptists have six games to play to win, those with the St. Paul's and three with the Presbyterians. It is probable that the Baptists will roll all three games from the St. Paul bowlers, at least that is their determination and they turn everything upside down to put it over. They will win the last two of the three games from the Presbyterian rollers.

The Congregationalists must meet the First Lutheran and Christians, both teams which are outclassed, although each of the teams might take one or two games and turn the schedule topsy turvy.

The St. Paul bowlers are at present one game in the lead and must win five to even up, three from the Episcopals and at least two from the Baptists. Should they be able to take all six the championship will probably be theirs. Any one of the teams, even the weaker ones, can throw the whole dope out of whack.

MISSOURI MAN STAR AT THE DASH EVENTS

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Columbia, Mo., May 3.—When Robert Simpson finished his athletic career at the University of Missouri last year, a career that has made him a world's champion in the hurdles, there was speculation as to who would be elected to carry the torch and lead the school to further victories. That was taken for granted, of course, that such an athletic star would appear; that the succession of champions produced at the Missouri college would not be broken after the years of outstanding supremacy of Bernard, Tamm, Fletcher, Nicholson and Simpson each in turn had been more than state and Missouri Valley champions. Now comes Jackson Volney Schulz, a student of his school, who appears to be destined to uphold the prestige established by his predecessors. Several weeks ago at Des Moines, he flashed the torch in the 100-yard dash, and he was aided by a healthy wind, so by way of proof he went to Philadelphia a few days later and at the athletic carnival held by the Fair of Pennsylvania he broke the tape first in the 100-yard dash, showing his heels to the best college runners in the country. His time was 16.2 seconds flat and the fact established his place in the athletic world. Schulz is now 21 years of age and is therefore eligible for army service. He already has applied for the naval reserve branch of aviation, although if he desired he could claim an exemption as he is junior in the school of agriculture. If he continues his athletic career he probably will smash more records. At least such are the assertions of track experts. Coach Schultz says he expects Schulz to do 100-15 in the 100 yards on a dry track this summer. Martin Delaney, coach of the Chicago Athletic Association, after watching the sprinter perform at Des Moines, is said to have remarked: "This performance merely substantiates my opinion he will be the greatest collegiate runner in the country this year."

Coach Schultz says he has entered his star in three more meets this year. He will run in the Missouri-Kansas dual meet, the Missouri Valley conference meet at Columbia and the Western conference meet at Chicago June 5.

MASS ATHLETICS TRIAL IS PLANNED FOR MAY 25

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Urbana, Ill., May 3.—So much favorable comment has come from other Western conference universities regarding mass athletics, the project of Coach Robert C. Zuppke and Harry Gil of the University of Illinois, that May 25 has been selected as the date for the first meet. A team of 200 men is to represent each school in the contest which consists of four events—broad jumping, high jumping, broad jumping and the 100-yard dash. Members of all classes from freshmen to graduates are eligible, regardless of their scholastic deficiencies. Membership on a varsity squad is the only bar to participation.

Each team will perform on its own athletic field, May 25, and will score to each of its rivals. The winner of the four events will be the team which scores a giant score board in the center of the field will tell of the work of its opponents.

Every one of the 200 contestants will compete in all four of the events. He will try to throw a thirty ounce hand grenade seventy-five feet into a fenced off area six feet wide and twelve feet in length. The area will be divided into three sections—"bull's eye," which counts five points; middle ring, counting three points; and outer circle, which is worth one point. The grenade must fall into the ring, not roll or bounce in. The total score for the 200 trials will constitute the team's score in the event.

In the running high jump one trial is given each man, who is entitled to the height at which he will try to cross the bar. The total number of feet leaped will make up the team total. In the same manner, the broad jumping is done. The broad jump is run against time, the team with the lowest record for the total 30,000 yards winning.

Already four conference schools, Minnesota, Wisconsin, Ohio State and Iowa State university, have promised to enter the meet. Ames, Nebraska, and Missouri have requested admission, and Camp Dodge, Ia., and Camp Sevier, Tenn., have written Coach Zuppke regarding the possibility of staging a dual meet between the soldiers and collegians.

Such a meet will probably be arranged unless the schools close earlier than usual.

MORRIS MILLER

The baseball gatherings these days have a distinctly military color. This applies particularly to such professional games as are played in localities adjacent to army cantonments. There are any number of French and British soldiers over here assisting in preparing the young American in war work. The visitors are becoming great fans. Of course being soldiers haven't robbed the Americans of their interest in the game.

The most frenzied and altogether abandoned baseball bug in the world is the French army officer. His soulful rooting makes that of the domestic bug seem tame and tepid. A young regiment of Clementine's soldiers can be seen at almost any of the major league parks any afternoon, and to watch them enjoy the game is alone worth the price of admission.

The British officer takes an intense interest in the game, but he never reaches the hot seething pitch of an French ally. His vocal outbursts are confined to such exclamations as "Bah, love, the jolly old dear ran out there, how perfectly the fence, how perfectly the fence, how perfectly the fence." The constant barrage of repartee that is fired between the two factions would get a laugh out of old Hindenburg himself.

This much is certain—there will be as many tail-enders this year as there were last, war or no war.

Leach Cross, who was one of the "cards of the boxing game, is now located on the coast, being the proprietor of a health gymnasium in Los Angeles. Leach writes that he is prospering and intends to open another gymnasium as soon as conditions become more favorable.

Speaking of the boxers, one of the coming lightweights of the game is Lucky O'Gally, who is connected with Bonnie Leonard in the rather hambo capacity of sparring partner. Lucky, a youngster, is game as a powder-fed cat, can hit hard and is swift on his feet. Leonard says: "Packsy is the greatest kid that ever pulled on a glove. When I was training for my first fight with Johnny Kilbane last summer I got the kid to box me a few rounds. In the third round I right him flush on the jaw with a right hook and knocked him flat. Several weeks later I met him in the gym and asked him to put on the gloves with me. Anyone else would have said, 'No, I don't want to have a fight with you, you're a champion.' But Packsy just jumped in the ring and proceeded to give me five warm and interesting rounds. I'm for him, strong and true. It isn't unusual for a champion's sparring partner to rise up and eventually surpass his master. While I think of it, who used to work with Packsy? Well, it was Jim Jeffries, who used to condition Jim Corbett."

Unquestionably Wilbert Robinson knows a lot about pitchers. It was his careful nursing that brought Babe Marquand to a high level and whether the Babe admits it or not Robinson was partly responsible for the tall left-hander hanging up nineteen straight victories several years ago with the Giants. Robinson also did much to bring the latent pitching qualities of big left Tressau to the surface. This year over in Brooklyn he will have another promising prospect to work on. Dan Griner is the boy. Dan made quite a record with St. Paul in the American Association last summer and the Brooklyn boss looks for him to duplicate his performance in the big top this season. Griner is the same pitcher who used to work for the Cardinals. He came up from the little Appalachian league in 1913; he is one of the big men of the game, standing six feet high and weighing 200 pounds.

He'll help Phil's twirling staff.

Pitcher Prendergast.

In his plans for a first rate pitching staff this season since the departure of Grover Alexander, Pat Moran, Phil's manager, has high hopes of seeing Prendergast, the ex-Cub, come through with some real class. Pat thinks well of the youngster who joined the Quakers in the deal that sent Alexander and Kilmer to the Cubs.

CITY LADS HEALTHIER THAN COUNTRY MEN

Madison, Wis., May 3.—Predictions being made by health authorities that country districts, where conditions have produced seventy-five per cent of the physical defects that are barring men from our military service, will be the objective of a state and national crusade for a higher standard of living. The draft proved that more country boys exhibited disqualifying defects than boys raised in cities.

A high official of the United States Public Health service, who is authority for the comparison, accounts for this difference by the lack of health supervision in the country schools. City schools have generally adopted health inspection, while few of the rural districts have done so. Defective eyes, teeth, ears and throats among the youth of rural communities have been found to be due largely to conditions in the rural schools. Improper desks and seats also have caused much spinal curvature, leading to other faulty conditions.

"These conditions ought to be corrected at once," said the official, "and should be examined because defects arising at their period of life as a rule cannot be overcome later."

In addition to health inspection for school children, modern water supply and sewage disposal facilities for farm homes will go far to eliminate insanitary conditions in the country, according to the state health authorities. The tendency in this direction is already manifest, and the next few years are expected to show a wonderful advance in the adoption of these sanitary betterments in severless homes.

BOTH PARTIES MUST APPEAR FOR LICENSE

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Madison, May 3.—Both parties in an application for a marriage license in Wisconsin must appear in person before the county clerk or make sworn statements before a notary, according to an opinion of the attorney general on Thursday. John W. Sedgwick, district attorney of Barron county.

It was held that they are entitled to count pension for the blind.

UNCLE SAM'S MEDALS FOR HEROES

The medal of honor (left) and the distinguished service cross.

The medal of honor is the highest award of the United States government. It is presented in the name of congress for distinguished gallantry in battle or for heroism of an especially distinguished character not performed in the regular line of duty.

The distinguished service cross was recently authorized by order of the president. It is awarded to those who, since April 6, 1917, have distinguished themselves by extraordinary heroism in connection with the military operations against an armed enemy of the United States under circumstances which do not justify the medal of honor. One hundred of these crosses have been shipped to France. Since these have been struck off, however, it has been decided to leave off the oak leaves, making the cross plain.

These medals, with their representative values, have their counterparts in the Victoria cross and distinguished service order of Great Britain and the medal militaire and croix de guerre of France.

Edgerton News

Edgerton, May 2.—In the contest held last evening at the high school Frederick Ellingson won first in original orations and James Curran was awarded second. The medal for this contest was given by the First National bank. In the extemporaneous contest Stanley Slagg was awarded first place, winning the medal given by the Highway Trailer company and Lowell Slagg was awarded second place. The cup given by T. B. Earle for the class winning the greatest number of points in all contests went to the class of 1918.

Word comes to the city of the safe arrival of Charles Campbell in France. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Campbell.

At the last regular meeting of the Edgerton Credit association held at the library hall on April 23, 1918, M. H. Brandt gave a talk on the Boy Scout movement and took up what had been done in Edgerton. He made known at that time his desire that a committee of business men get behind the Boy Scouts of this city, as the result of which a motion was carried that the committee appoint a committee of the business men to take charge of the Boy Scout movement.

President Raymond, after taking the matter up with Mr. Brandt, has named the following members of the credit association on that committee: P. M. Ellingson, J. W. Menhall, W. A. Borgals and Fred Young, and has asked the following men who are not members of the credit association to act on that committee: Andrew McIntosh, D. P. Devine, C. W. Bickemeyer, P. O. Holt and Richard Curran.

The secretary has taken the matter up with the national headquarters of Boy Scouts at New York in an attempt to get any suggestions or additional information that might be of value to the committee. A meeting of the committee will be called for the early part of next week to confer with Mr. Brandt. Mr. Brandt leaves soon for Shioyoga to take up his new position and the committee which has been appointed will endeavor to carry on the work which has been so efficiently handled by him as Scoutmaster.

BRINGS ENCOURAGING NEWS FROM WEST FRONT

Paris, May 3.—Henri Bidon, the distinguished military critic of the Journal des Debats who has just returned from the front gave Reuters' correspondent here a most encouraging account of the position there. He says the last time he visited the front was just after the capture of Kemmel hill. He found some gloom over the possibility involved in its loss but when he returned he was delighted to find a spirit of the utmost confidence among the allied officers and men, resulting from the magnificent manner in which the Germans had been held up.
